LADIES' BOOTS. A little glove stirs up my heart, as tides stir up the curious notion ; All sorts of lady fixins thrill my feelings, as they'd

And just to put you on your guard, I'll give you, short and brief, A small hotel experience, Which filled my heart with grief. Last summer at the Clarendon, I stopped a week or more, And marked two "boot-ies" every morn Before my neighbor's door-Two boots with patent leather tips-Two boots which seemed to say, "An angel trots around in us;" They stole my heart away. I saw the servant take 'em off, With those of other brutes-His soul was all in sixpences, But mine was in the boots. And often in my nightly dreams They swept before my face-A lady growing out of them, As flowers grow from a vase. But, ah! one morn I saw a sight Which struck me like a stone,

Some other name was on the books-

Those boots were not alone!

A great, tall pair of other boots

Were standing by their side!

And off they walked that afternoon,

And with them walked-a bride! Enough, enough, my song is sung-Love's tree bears bitter fruits; Beware of beauty-reader, mind, But, oh! beware of boots! [From the Fly Leaf in Backle's History of Civilization.] BUCKLE'S BELIEF. This is the creci-let no man chuckle-Of the great thinker, Henry Buckle: " I believe in fire and water, And in Fate, Dame Nature's daughter ; Consciousness I set aside-The dissecting knife 's my guide ; I believe in steam and rice, Not in virtue, nor in vice ; In what strikes the outward sense, Not in mind or Providence; In a stated course of crimes, In Macaulay, and The Times. As for Truth, the ancients lost her-Plato was a great imposter. Morals are a vain illusion, Leading only to confusion. Not in Latin nor in Greek Let us for instruction seek; Let us study snakes and flies,

Let us watch the kangaroo; Would we know the mental march, It depends on dates and starch. I believe in all the gases, As a means to raise the masses. Carbon animates ambition, Oxygen controls volition; Whate'er is good or great in men May be traced to hydrogen; And the body, not the soul,

The air which he breathes from his lungs is loaded with moisture. Were that which he draws in entirely free from watery vapor, he would soon breathe out the fluids which fill up his tissues, and would dry up into a withered and ghastly mummy. It is because the simoom and other hot winds of the desert approach to this state of dryness, that they are so fatal to those who travel in the arid waste. Professor Quetelet states that of the 38 pounds of dry matter in the model man, 24 pounds are flesh and fat, and 14 pounds bone; 28 pounds are organic matter, combustible, and 10 pounds mineral matter, incombustible. If a hundred pounds of human blood be rendered perfectly dry, by a heat not much exceeding that of boiling water, it will be reduced

The Midshipman's Three Dinners.

I do not think there is any harm in putting the following story on record. It was told me, many years ago, by the hero of it, my very valued friend, Captain (afterwards Admiral Sir Francis) Beaufort. There are many men in whose mouths such a story would pass for a flourish, but all who knew Sir Francis Beaufort, also knew how singularly and eminently free he was from all disposition to exaggerate. In fact, nothing but the notoriety of And snow white muslin, when it fits, wakes many a his character in this respect, and in several others which tend the same way, would justify the publication. To gain him a reputation of a mender of good stories would be rather a difficult task. The oddity of the circumstance struck me so much

But little female gaiter boots are death, and nothing that I remember the details and almost the phrases. We were talking of a midshipman's appetite as a thing which bears a high character for energy and punctuality, and Captain Beaufort said it had never been fully tried how many dinners a midshipman could eat in one day. "I," said he, "got as far as three." I begged to know the particulars, and he gave them as follows: "I had eaten my dinner at the midshipman's table, and a very good one, as I always did. After it, the captain's steward came up and said, "the captain's compliments and desires the favor of your company to dinner." "But I've dined," said I. "For mercy's sake, don't say that, sir," said he, "for I shall be in a scrape if you do; I ought to have asked you this morning, but 1 forgot." So I thought I must go; and two hours after I did go, and I dined, and think I made my usual good dinner. Inst as we rose from the table a signal was made by the Admiral to send an officer on board, and as it was my turn, I had to go off in the boat. When I got on board the admiral's ship, the admiral said to me, "Ah, Mr. Beaufort, I believe; the papers you are to take back will not be ready this half hour; but I am just sitting down to dinner, and shall be glad of your company." Now, you know, as to a midshipman refusing to dipe with the admiral, there are not the words for it in the naval dictionary. So I sat down to my third dinner, and I am sure I did very well, and I got back to my own ship just in time for tea."-[Ev'g

> SLANDER.-In the last volume of Gray's Reports there is an excellent decision of the Supreme Court, which is sound morals as well as good law. It seems that a woman uttered a slander of another, and, when sued for it, her defence was that she only repeated what was currently reported; that she had no malice, and therefore was not liable to an action. Judge Thomas gave a capital opinion, which we should be glad to print at length. The story, he says, uttered or repeated by the defendant contains a charge against the plaintiff, of a nature to destroy her reputation. It was a false charge. It is no answer, in any forum, to say that she only reported the story as she heard it. If the story was false and slanderous, she must repeat it at her peril. There is safety in no other rule. Often the origin of slander cannot be traced. He who gives it circulation gives it its power of mischief. It is the successive repetitions that do the work. A falsehood often repeated gets to be believed. A man cannot say there is a story in circulation that A. poisoned his wife, or B. picked C.'s pocket, and relate the story, and when called upon to answer, say, "There was such a report in circulation: I but repeated what I heard, and had no design to circulate or confirm it; " for two very plain reasons -that the repetition of the story must, in the nature of things, give it currency; and the repetition, without the expression of disbelief, will confirm it. The danger is an obvious one, and long | hope to be able to give satisfaction. since pointed out; and it is, that bad men may give currency to slanderous reports, and then find in that currency their own protection from the just consequences of a repetition .- Boston Tran-

THE SALARIES OF MUSICAL ARTISTS .- The French papers give some curious statistics in regard to the salaries paid to the great musical artists. We learn that Malibran receives in London, for every performance at Drury Lane, $750. Lablache, for singing twice, $750, and for a single lesson to Queen Victoria, $290. At a soirce in London Grisi receives §1200. Paganini charged $400 a lesson. Hummel left a fortune of $75,-000, and twenty-six diamond rings, thirty-four snuff-boxes, and one hundred and fourteen watches, which had been presented to him at various

In modern days musicians are quite as extravagantly paid-Alboni and Mario get $400 every night they sing; Tamberlik every time he sings a certain high note demands $500. Madame Gazzaniga was paid $500 a night recently in Philadelphia. Herz and Thalberg each made about $60,000 in this country. Lagrange at Rio Janeiro, is now receiving a princely salary : and to a friend, or other cause, a person walking in the Piccolomini costs her manager over $5,000 a month.

At the Italian Opera in Paris, for the present season, M. Calzado, the manager, pays as follows: and standing to converse with others, or to allow To Tamberlik, for seventeen representations, $8, 000; Alboni, $2200, for seven representations $5,000 for two months; Madame Penco, $14,000 for the season; the Graziani Brothers, $15,400: Corsi, a baritone, $4000; Galyani, $3,600; Nantier-Didice, $4000; Zecchini, $3600; Mdle. de ant artery that it had to be cut down upon from | Puda, $3400. The chorus and orchestra cost for the season $17,600.

NATIONAL DEBTS .- It appears from a return just published by the Russian government, that at the beginning of the present year the debt of Russia is $352,467,120. This sum cannot be considered excessive, the debt of France being $1,giving nature of its washing out qualities.

To sit down to a table and "force" yourself to that of Austria $1,124,890,000, and that of Pruseat when there is not only no appetite, but a pos- sia $159,630,000. Thus Russia is the least indebted of all great states but one, and she is the To take a glass of soda, or toddy, or sangaree, least of any, compared to her population. In England for example, the debt is equal to $143 for each inhabitant; in France $42; in Austria $33; in Prussia $11; in Russia $7. The sums employed by each state annually in payment of inin Prussia. Russia is here again the last but one, and according to population, the lowest; in Engin Russia 48 cts. Finally, whilst in England the get, it only takes 30 per cent. in Austria and

THE Golden Rule teaches to do unto others as we would have others do unto us. At the same time it teaches us not to expect from our neighbors what we would not be willing, under similar circumstances, to do for them.

NOTICE. WHEREAS THE UNDERSIGNED HAS BEEN INFORMED on IV good authority that great irregularity exists in the taking and killing of the wild cattle on the mountains on Hawaii, belonging to His Majesty and to the Government, by parties who claim or pretend to claim right under bills of sale from His Maje esty or from the Government, and whereas, from the nature of the country and other causes it is almost impossible to place agents to guard the interests of His Majesty and of the Government, and whereas all parties having legal claims on the said wild cattle have already had time sufficient, if they have used due diligence to remove the same.

Now therefore, the undersigned hereby gives notice to all parties who purchased wild cattle running on the mountains on ila-waii, previous to the 1st day of January 1857, to remove the same if not already removed, on or before the 1st day of May next, after which time, parties taking wild cattle will be prosecuted. Importer and dealer in Wines, Liquors and Cigars Interior Office, Jan. 29th, 1858. L. KAMEHAMEHA.
